CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (February 27, 2019) — Cambridge Trust today announced that its Beacon Hill office will showcase the work of local artist Karen Lee Sobol as part of its Branch Gallery Initiative. The exhibit is an opportunity to further the bank's longstanding commitment to serve the community through its support of the Arts.

"Cambridge Trust is pleased to continue our support of the Boston arts community by showcasing the works of local artist Karen Lee Sobol," said Stacy Sheehan, Vice President and Manager of the Cambridge Trust Beacon Hill office. "Her beautiful artwork is uplifting and expresses positivity – qualities that Cambridge Trust is very much aligned with. I invite our clients and friends to a reception with the artist on March 14 at the Cambridge Trust Beacon Hill office, where the collection will be on display through March 31, 2019."

Event details:

- Cambridge Trust Branch Gallery Initiative featuring works by Karen Lee Sobol
- Reception with the artist: Wednesday, March 14, 2019, from 6:00pm to 8:00pm
- Cambridge Trust's Beacon Hill office, located at 65 Beacon Street, Boston
- The exhibit will run through March 31, 2019

The exhibit is entitled "Away We Go! To garden and forest, sky and sea.," and includes creative interpretations of the world around us. "My intention is to transport viewers to a luminous world of possibility through my art," said Karen Lee Sobol. "I look forward to sharing conversation and creativity at the reception on March 14."

About the Artist:

Artist, author, architect, and advocate, Karen Lee Sobol is an explorer of our spiritual and physical realms. In many media, her art celebrates both nature and human nature.

As an alumna of Radcliffe College and the Harvard Graduate School of Design, Karen Lee has shown her work at both alma maters. Abroad, her work has been exhibited in Cracow, Tblisi, Amsterdam, and beyond. Her memoir—Twelve Weeks: An Artist's Story of Cancer, Healing, and Hope—is illustrated with her art.

An affiliated artist with the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Karen Lee expands her reach in the worlds of art and science. She serves on the executive committee of Save Venice / Boston chapter, and as a goodwill ambassador for the Bing Center for Waldenstrom's Macroglobulinemia at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. She was also a longtime advisory board member of the Center for Health and the Global Environment at the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health.
